The Use of Cement Pipe for Sewers.

The following veto was filed with City Clerk Geary yesterday afternoon:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Utica:

The following action of your honorable body Friday evening, April 2, 1880, is hereby returned without my approval. (Here is given at length the resolution adopted by the Council providing for a cement sewer in Albany street.)

The sewerage of our city is a very important matter, both from a sanitary and financial standpoint. Our City Surveyor, who is thoroughly competent to judge, has recommended vitrified sewer pipe as the cheapest, safest and best. Since this question was brought before the Council I have received over thirty letters from surveyors and engineers of different cities unanimously testifying to its superiority of this pipe, and stating that it is now universally used throughout the country.

Then why does the Council insist on putting down cement? Some Aldermen say the people petition for it—there is some force in that I admit—but are they the only parties interested in this matter? When the sewers prove defective (as they are doing continually) the city, and not the people must foot the bills.

And are we to pay any attention to the wail that was dinned into our ears last fall about the sewer gas in the cellars and houses of our citizens? I think we should. If these evils are to be remedied the city should have a voice in the choice of pipe, and I claim should accept the advice of its Surveyor as having had the most experience in such matters.

The only real argument that has been or can be made in favor of the cement pipe we are now using is that it is manufactured here, and a prominent politician is interested in its sale.

It seems to me this is not forcible enough to justify jeopardizing the lives of our citizens through fective sewerage, and the depletion of their pockets in trying to maintain a system with inferior pipe. This is too expensive and dangerous a monopoly for this Council to encourage or maintain.

Cement Sewer Pipe.

OSHKOSH, Oct. 29, 1884.—For the information of those who are misled concerning Cement Sewer-pipe, I wish to state that such sewer pipe is being very extensively manufactured and used in the State of Wisconsin, and is preferred to vitrified. First, for its great strength and durability, it being from one-third to one-half stronger, and less liable to crush in the ditch. Being solidly packed, it, making, between iron moulds, it becomes impervious to water or acids, and, if one of these pipes, such as made in Wisconsin, is cemented tight at one end and filled with water, the water will stay there until it evaporates, which shows that it does not filter through. The older this pipe gets, the harder and more rock-like it becomes. Second, this pipe is preferred to all others on account of its shape. The larger sizes are egg-shape, contracting the flow in a narrow channel at the bottom, increasing its velocity, keeping it clean and at the same time having a large area above for a large volume of water when needed. It also has a flat base, which makes it lay firm in the ditch, keeping it in shape, while a round pipe is more liable to roll and get out of shape, either in the filling or settling of the ditch. Cement pipe has been used for sewers in England and various parts of the old world for over one hundred years, and has proved indestructible, either by the action of sewage or time, and is still very extensively used in London and various other European cities. Brooklyn, N. Y., has over fifty miles of cement pipe sewers, laid from twenty to forty years ago, and still giving perfect satisfaction. Query: Why is cement used in brick sewers, and plastered all over the interior surface? Simply because sewage will not go through it to be filtered through the porous brick. Yours respectfully, C. R. HEWITT.

"Sore ... Fire"

Is a common expression, often heard from those who have realized, by personal use, the curative powers of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. "I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died from lung troubles.—E. Bragdon, Palestine, Tex.

About six months ago I had a severe Hemorrhage of the Lungs, brought on by a distressing Cough, which deprived me of sleep and rest. I had used various cough balsams and expectorants, without obtaining relief. A friend advised me to try

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

I did so, and am happy to say that it helped me at once. By continued use this medicine cured my cough, and, I am satisfied, saved my life.—Mrs. E. Coburn, 18 Second st., Lowell, Mass.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for over a year, and sincerely believe I should have been in my grave, had it not been for this medicine. It has cured me of a dangerous affection of the lungs, for which I had almost despaired of ever finding a remedy.—D. A. McMullen, Windsor, Province of Ontario.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life. Two years ago I took a very severe Cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted physicians, and took the remedies they prescribed, but failed to obtain relief until I began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Two bottles of this medicine completely restored my health.—Lizzie M. Allen, West Lancaster, Ohio.

THOUSANDS OF CASES OF

SICK

Headache are permanently cured every year (as the hundreds of testimonials in my possession will testify) by the use of Dr. Leslie's Special Prescription. This Remedy stands to-day without a rival and with scarcely a competitor in the world. Thousands of Physicians throughout the country have acknowledged their inability to cure it, and are now prescribing Dr. Leslie's Special Prescription for all cases of Sick in either its nervous, bilious or congestive form, arising from obstruction, congestion or torpidity of the liver. When I say that Dr. Leslie's Special Prescription will cure the most obstinate cases of Sick Headache, I mean just what I say, and that is, that it not merely relieves, but cures, no matter how long the case may have been standing.

HEADACHE

I have testimonials from persons who have been afflicted for twenty years, being confined to bed two or three days at a time every two weeks, that have been permanently cured by two bottles of Dr Leslie's Special Prescription, so that they have not had an attack for over five years.

If you are troubled with Sick Headache and wish to be

be sure and give this remedy a trial. Price $1.00.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

Mr. Calvin Conant, of Turner, died very suddenly of heart disease, at his residence, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Conant had been sick for some time past, but his so sudden death was wholly unlooked for by his family.

Aroostook.

Sunday afternoon, Alice, the seven years old daughter of James Doherty, of New Limerick, fell from a fence and dislocated her shoulder.

There were shipped from Houlton station for the week ending September 11, 26 cars potatoes, 10 cars lumber, 6 cars miscellaneous, 5 cars shingles, 5 cars fresh meat, 2 cars leather, 2 cars starch, 1 car horses, 1 car sheep. Total, 58 cars.

Mr. Philbrick of the Snell House, Houlton, is thought to be slowly recovering from the serious accident which befell him a week ago Sunday, by being thrown from his carriage.

Cumberland.

Michael Desmond, the young man who was stabbed Monday night in Portland by William James, was living Tuesday evening, and the doctors say there is a possibility of his recovery.

The summer house of A. A. Strout, Esq., at Cumberland, was entered Sunday night by a thief, through the lower window. Some plated ware and other articles were stolen. The robbery probably occurred during the severe showers, the noise of which prevented the operations of the burglar from being heard.

The Portland Press says: During the fog and drizzle of last Friday night a quite unusual number of small birds were killed by striking the lighthouses. At the eastern Cape light about fifty dead ones were picked up, and this, too, after four cats had been gorging themselves all night. Several plover of the yellow leg variety were among the slain.

As Charles Valente was driving into Portland from Saccarappa with a load, Sunday, when descending a hill the breeching broke, allowing the wagon to run into the horse's heels. The animal began to kick. Valente was thrown under his heels and received a kick in the face, breaking his nose and inflicting other injuries. The wheel of the cart also passed over his ankle.

A grand excursion and regatta of the Cumberland Rowing Association will take place at Lake Sebago, Tuesday, September 21st. Prizes to the value of $200 are offered, and the entries already made ensure an interesting race. Grimmer will furnish the music, and on the Lake shore will be foot-ball, swinging and kindred amusements. Reduced rates have been made on the railroads.

Since completing the work of Bible distribution in Portland this society have completed all the remaining towns and islands in Cumberland county, save Yarmouth, which is now being visited. Work in Androscoggin county has been commenced and seven towns have thus far been visited. Men have also been commissioned for Franklin county and work in that field will be completed during the fall months.

The next annual convention of the Maine State Sunday School Association, will be held in Portland, October 18-20. Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbert is to take general charge of the convention. Mr. B. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, chairman of the International Executive Committee, will represent the international work and also participate in other exercises; and Mrs. C. L. Harris (Hope Ledyard), of Brooklyn, will direct the primary class work.

Kennebec.

The ice houses owned by the Knickerbocker Ice Company of Philadelphia at Farmingdale, were blown down during Sunday night's storm. They were destroyed by fire last June, and the owners had re-commenced to build.

Lincoln.

Capt. Reed, of fishing schooner Voright, of Boothbay, reports that he went into Paspebiac in distress, rigging carried away and out of water, and upon application to steamer Lansdowne for permission to enter, repair and fill water, was peremptorily ordered to sea, given one hour to get out of the harbor and was compelled to go to sea without water or repairs.

Oxford.

Addison Bachelder fell from the new post office block in Bethel, Thursday, and broke his arm, badly shattering the bones of the wrist. The citizens raised quite a purse to help him through his trouble. His family are very grateful for the timely aid as they depended upon his labor for support.

The Oxford County Musical Association will hold its eleventh annual session at Mechanic Falls, commencing October 12. Handel's oratorio "Samson" will be taken up for practice and will be given at the concert. Prof. Kotzschmar will conduct the chorus, Mrs. Fellows of New York, Mrs. Morrison of Portland, Messrs. Stockbridge and Coyle will do the solo work. It is expected that Harvey Murray, lately returned from Europe, will be engaged as pianist, Mrs. Alice Tewksbury as organist.

Somerset.

Mrs. Davis, the Skowhegan lady who attempted suicide Thursday morning, will live. She succeeded in cutting a large hole in the windpipe and bled freely, but was discovered in time to save her life. A child's small jack knife was the instrument used.

Waldo.

Mrs. Martha Welch, of Belfast, who was so badly burned a few weeks ago, is now able to be up and about the house. Her physician thinks that she will recover the use of both arms, though she may suffer pain and inconvenience from the wounds on the right arm for a long time.

The Bucksport Clipper tells how a Belfast captain named Veazie was once happily surprised in a foreign country. His ship had struck a sunken ledge off the coast of China and was rapidly filling. The crew were anxiously thinking of pirates, when their worst fears seemed realized by the appearance of a Chinese man-of-war, from which an officer, dressed as a high mandarin, took a boat for their vessel. His first salutation, however, was to the captain's wife, whom he addressed as "aunt." The mandarin proved to be a nephew of Mrs. Veazie, named Reuben McCaslin of Penobscot, who had sailed away from his home at the age of sixteen years, and was at this time, a commodore in the Chinese navy.

George H. Lincoln, of Washington, lost a valuable cow, Tuesday, from the effects of eating Paris green, and the Lincoln News says it is claimed that it was given to the cow for a malicious purpose.

The State Fair.

HOW IT LOOKS AS SEEN THROUGH THE LEWISTON JOURNAL.

THE SECOND DAY.

There never was such a rush to the Fair Grounds on the second day of its progress as started early this morning and continued all the forenoon. From 9 o'clock A. M., until this writing, two unbroken galloping processions of teams made the roads black between the city and the park—one going and one coming. At 11 A. M., 10,000 people were on the grounds and folks were then pouring in faster than ever.

The splendid weather had much to do with it. Who remembers a more beautiful September day? The sprinkles of Tuesday had laid the dust and invigorated the people, and there was nothing to think of but the good time.

The horsemen are exchanging congratulations on the success of Tuesday afternoon's races. The experts say that the 2.37 class, in which ten horses staid in till the close, was the best race ever seen on the grounds. Club made a record that put him up among the best horses in Maine—but a little too low for the profit of his owners.

The forenoon at the park was occupied with a base ball game, pulling match, examinations of horses and cattle and a grand tour of the cattle stalls by the people. Mr. L. T. Carvil's gigantic Holstein bull attracted more notice than anything or anybody here.

Among the arrivals in the morning were the Governor's Council. The party included Hon. Jos. A. Locke, of Portland, Hon. A. R. Bixby, of Skowhegan, Hon. Lambert Sands, of Sebec, and Hon. G. R. Fernald, of Wilton. State Land Agent Packard accompanied them.

SOMETHING MISSING.

An unusual throng was in the streets, which had an old-time State Fair look. People missed the City Hall show, the art gallery and the other usual attractions of City Building. The ladies especially deplored this lack. Why! everybody liked to go to the hall and see each other, no matter what the exhibit was. The exhibit was good, too. But the sociable folks enjoyed going and rubbing each other's elbows, hearing the band play, eating candy and seeing what each other had on. It is a unanimous vote that it was a mistake to discontinue the City Hall show. "The net receipts from it, last year, were $1,800," says Treasurer Osgood.

THE MAIN EXHIBITION BUILDING.

The first, last and intermediate resort of the public is the big exhibition building on the grounds. Up and down the people go, by elevator and stairways. Here and there they wander, througnout its spacious corridors. It is the resort of ladies in storm and shine.

FROM THE GROUND FLOOR

to the platform under the spire, the current of people is incessant. It is the best thing of the big show, and a happy idea it was when the progressive State Fair trustees decided to erect it. Nobody has done the Fair until he has walked its length and breadth and all its angles, many times, and topped off with a glance at all the kingdoms of the Androscoggin valley.

Come out and take a look over the big building. Not a "revised" look, if such a term may be used, but a glance at the building in the process of its settlement while everything is in a bustle of preparation and when the most that can be done is to note the location of its features in the form of a partial directory.

We enter here at the wing fronting the main entrance. Everything is in a clatter. Everybody seems to be driving nails. The elevator is going up and down. You nor any one else never before saw so many people in this building so early in the week of State Fair as this, for it is now but 10.30 o'clock Tuesday forenoon.

THE LOWER FLOOR

is the best settled of them all. In its west wing is a general exhibit of merchandise, soaps, boots and shoes, fire apparatus, spring beds, &c. It is fairly ablaze with the bravery of lithographed advertisements and with the glitter of enticing signs. Opposite this, in the east wing, is the exhibit of butter, cheese, dairy salt and dairy implements. This place is worth visiting and will compel attention and admiration. Higgins' Eureka Salt makes a rare exhibit, topping a pyramid of bags of salt with a monster bag as big as four flour barrels. It is surmounted by flags. I. C. Bradford shows the Cooley creamery in an extensive way and personally superintends the exhibit.

"Don't it smell good here?" is the common remark of everybody. The sniffs at the fragrance are all approving.

Why shouldn't it smell good? Piled in pyramids on every side are cheeses, yellow, white, green and golden. In boxes, jars, cases, are great golden lumps of butter in all forms and shapes and sizes.

and an exhibit by the Bangor Stone Ware Company and almost over topping it like the

is a glorious display of pampas plumes and colored grasses The Lisbon paint mine exhibit is on this floor and here also, is a variety of patent nostrums.

THE SECOND FLOOR.

The East Auburn Grange has the post of honor in the north wing, and next to it the Turner grange. The exhibit of the East Auburn grange includes fancy work, art needle work, crockery, preserves, fruits of the orchard and garden as well as of the field and farm. It is in charge of the committee, who are Messrs. Records, Fields, Lowell, Waterman and others.

The Shaker sisters have an exhibit of unusual interest near here. It is presided over by two of the sisters who sell candy and articles that bear the stamp of the unique workmanship of this community. It includes everything in the line of basket and fancy work, but the most striking features of it all are the mild, gentle countenances of the ladies who preside over the collection.

Move along with us and we come to a gorgeous show of rugs and counterpanes, as well as an endless variety of art goods.

The Auburn ladies of W. C. T. U. have established near here a cosy stand for the sale of books and periodicals and for the distribution of temperance literature. Ten steps further along, Trustee Brackett has placed his

STATE FAIR REGISTER.

This is a book, similar to a hotel register and capable of containing 5,000 names. Everybody is expected to register.

The art gallery occupies two wings of this floor. It is extensive and varied. It merits a long visit and a critical examination. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pressey are in charge of the art gallery and ladies' fancy goods department.

The photographic features in this department are excellent. The ladies say, that the fancy needle work exhibit, in spite of early indications to the contrary, is quite as good as usual and that the additions Tuesday were many times more extensive than ever known before on the opening day of the Fair.

At 11.30 A. M., Tuesday, hardly more than half of the pictures had been hung. Many boxes of them littered the floor in the centre of the hall near the elevator. The entrance to the wings occupied by the art gallery, has been tastefully decorated and is like going into a boudoir of the beautiful.

On this floor also, is the exhibit of stoves, parlor organs, furs, sewing machines, furniture and fancy articles. The feature of the display on this floor is rather that of articles for sale than for pure exhibit. It was of extreme interest.

UNDER THIS ROOF

we hear the hum of the bees and catch the fragrance of the orchard.

Apples!

They are everywhere; and by their side each time is the pear and plum.

"I never have seen a finer collection of apples," says Fred Wright, of Bath. "I took the first premium last year, but can't tell anything about it this year. Everybody's apples are first-class and it's hard to choose."

The apples fill two wings.

The bee exhibit in charge of F. F. Graves, of Waterville, and John Pike, of Livermore, will fill the entire south wing of this building on the third floor. The bees were not fully in place, Tuesday, and neither were the apples, but everybody had his sleeves rolled up and was at work.

We feel like especially commending the exhibit of cut flowers.

ON THE ROOF

up here are four ladies discussing fashions from an airy height.

"How funny people do look," is their summary, full of satisfaction to themselves.

Soft blows the south wind, for it is high noon, and the clouds seem to have been dispelled by the sound of the dinner bell. A callow pair whisper to each other in the further corner. Abroad, we see the sun on the hill-tops of old Oxford, and the shadows that come and go make a landscape that alone is worth this trip to the State Fair, and the flight to this realm of the air. The sounds from the base ball field and from the restaurants reach us faintly. There is drumming in the tent where a side show man is displaying his nostrums. Afar we see the oxen swish their tails and the trotters circle the track. A bird's-eye view of the whole crowd can be obtained here—and what a sight it is! Bigness is the only word for it. It is the show piece of this State, and everybody will say "amen" to the labors of the State Fair officers as he completes this trip from earth to air.

SKIN GAMES MUST GO.

"Get in and take a turn with me," said City Marshal Guptil, as he drove up near the exhibition building at 5.30 P. M. Monday, and cramped his wheel.

"I am hunting down the game of chance, the lottery and the swindle," he continued, as he turned his horse's nose in the direction of the colony of fakirs who have settled on the edge of the road between this point and the grand stand.

Ten rods further along, he pulled up his horse and stopped. It was in the midst of a babel of noise and a confusion of business, none of which ceased on account of the sudden coming of the chief of Lewiston's police. Two young men were running a knife board, and in front of their board the City Marshal stopped. "I don't want to find you doing this to-morrow, boys," said he. "If I do, we will take you and your board. It must be stopped now."

The young fellows put away their material, and promised to go into another business.

A short distance beyond, the City Marshal drew up his horse in front of an array of walking-sticks, where a voluble man of middle age was haranguing a youthful audience to invest a dime in a chance to get a cane over which they could pitch a ring.

"Have you a license for that?" asked the City Marshal.

The man looked up abashed.

"If I find you on the grounds with that contrivance to-morrow morning, or within fifteen minutes from this time, you will be arrested," was the quiet remark of the City Marshal, and the man promised obedience to the mandates of the law.

The City Marshal and the Journal scribe made a tour of the grounds in search of similar offenders, and every one was notified.

There will be no inducement for the fool and his money to part in games of chance at the State Fair grounds this year.

Whig and Courier.

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

C. A. BOUTELLE, Editor.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed "Editor of Whig and Courier."

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1886.

The Commercial had much to say about the "tariff humbug" in the last campaign and the people of Maine have answered by returning a solid Republican delegation to Congress.

We would suggest to some of our Democratic contemporaries that they get their ante-election pledges framed, as such a course might possibly save them from another ridiculous exhibition in 1888.

The unanimity with which the Republicans of New Hampshire nominated Col. Charles H. Sawyer, of Dover, as their candidate for Governor, as well as the general tone of the convention throughout, augurs well for a spirited and successful campaign.

Had ex-Gov. Garcelon been elected in the Second District it would have been claimed as a splendid vindication. He was not elected, however, and it is to be hoped that he may at last understand that the people of Maine have had quite enough of State steal statesmen.

The Ohio Democrats are going to concentrate all their energies in trying to defeat Lieutenant Governor Kennedy for Congress, and so punish him for aiding in unseating the four fraudulent Senators from Hamilton County. The law loving citizens will doubtless frustrate that little scheme.

Just prior to the election Chairman Brown issued an appeal to the faithful to sweep the State and remarked "we hope to review your work on Tuesday with pleasure." As we have heard nothing from Brown since we imagine he is too much overcome with joy to give expression to his feelings.

Democratic papers are not to be held to strict accountability for their utterances just now, but when the Boston Post rises to remark that the election in this State, Monday, was "Mr. St. John's victory" we submit that it is time for the friends of that writer to interfere. That editor needs a rest at once, or more serious consequences may result.

President Cleveland's record thus far would not make up a stunning campaign document, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. A smirched Cabinet, 127 vetoes, a small string of trout and one buck shot in the neck will about cover the noted acts of the Administration. If we have omitted anything it will be inserted cheerfully without charge.

Additional returns of the election come in slowly but they continue to confirm the earlier estimates. Mr. Bodwell's plurality will be about 14,000 and his majority over all nearly 10,000. In 1882 the Republican plurality was 8,560 and the majority 6,530. Our friends the enemy are welcome to all the consolation they can obtain from these figures.

When Governor Foraker, of Ohio, was called to account for sending tents to Charleston without authority of law, he replied: "I have no statutory authority, but necessity and humanity do not need any such authority. I have confidence enough in the patriotism and generosity of the people of this State to know they will approve and uphold the act."

We regret to see that our evening contemporary fails to offer any explanation concerning its "support" of the ticket. Some of the other candidates on the Democratic side might like to know whether they were sacrificed for Mr. Brown, as that would seem to be the only interpretation of the Commercial's editorial of Wednesday.

The New York Evening Post thinks that the Republicans of Maine "have more cause for gloom than the Democrats." Possibly the Post can convince the Democrats of the truth of its somewhat obscure statement, but we doubt it very much. At least we can assure our Mugwump contemporary that the Republicans will thrive finely for a great many years with the same "gloomy" surroundings in this State.

Throughout the whole excitement at Charleston there was no finer exhibition of loyalty to duty than that displayed by the members of the fire department. The men have stood on their posts like heroes and have responded to the fire alarms elsewhere with the same promptness that they did before their engine houses were destroyed. They camped about their engines in the streets, and none were able to go to their individual homes during the terrible ordeal.

A two weeks' deadlock in the Democratic convention in the Second Wisconsin District and the taking of several hundred ballots have ended in the nomination of A. K. Delaney. Delaney is the man to whom Mr. Cleveland's friend Gen. Bragg, agreed to transfer the Federal patronage in his district to pay him for taking himself out of the way as a candidate for Congress. Afterward Delaney declined to keep the agreement, and the disgraceful correspondence was published. This made Bragg's nomination hopeless, but he did his utmost to defeat Delaney, though without success.

As one of the effects of the third party movement the Rockland Free Press points to the defeat in Knox County of Hon. T. R. Simonton, who was a candidate for re-election to the State Senate. Mr. Simonton is one of the most prominent temperance men in the State and received a flattering vote in his own home, Camden, but the third party men in other portions of the county drew away sufficient strength to prevent his election. It would now be interesting for those men to figure out just how the cause of temperance has been benefited by the change.

The Republican leaders in Maine are greatly relieved to find that they were not whipped out of their boots. They knew that they deserved defeat, and much feared it. As it was, with the aid of much money and many mercenary speakers, they pulled through with a greatly reduced majority.—Portland Argus.

The Argus will, perhaps, talk more sensibly when it gets over its bitter disappointment. Maine's verdict last Monday was the most emphatic for years in a non-Presidential contest, a fact shown by a comparison of the vote, and as for "mercenary speakers" such comments come with very poor grace from the organ of a party that defrayed the expenses of ex-Gov. St. John's tour of Maine.

Congressman Boutelle has accepted an invitation to address the New Jersey Republican State Convention at Trenton, October 5th.

Admitting the Facts

We believe in looking the facts in the face, whether they are agreeable to us or not. There is no use in denying that Mr. Blaine has carried Maine by a majority which, considering that it is an off year, is fully up to the vote given for him in 1884. The logical deduction of this is that Mr. Blaine is now as strong at least as he ever was, and the inference may not unfairly be drawn that, as in Maine, so in the country, he is still the most popular of all the Republican leaders.—Boston Globe, Dem.

Further returns show that the Republicans of Maine hold their own after all. Their candidate for Governor has a much larger plurality than they gave four years ago, and nearly as large as that of 1884, the Presidential year. But in Maine this is a Presidential year, with all that that implies. The Republicans had some hard work to do; but it cannot be denied that they did it effectively, and Neal Dow's prohibition bauble seems crushed beyond repair.—Washington Post, Dem.

Some of our Democratic and Mugwump contemporaries that are trying to belittle the Maine victory, would do well to absorb a little common sense from the above extracts.

Governor-Elect Bodwell.

The citizens of Hallowell, the home of Governor-elect Bodwell, had a grand jollification Wednesday night over the result of the election. The city was brilliantly illuminated and a large procession marched through the principal streets to the residence of Mr. Bodwell, where an address on the part of the citizens was delivered by Dr. S. W. Thompson, after which Mr. Bodwell spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS—The reception you have tendered me this evening, is one so very flattering, that I am at loss for language to express to you my appreciation in a manner which the occasion deserves. Coming as it does from the citizens of Hallowell, irrespective of party, makes it all the more gratifying.

Twenty years ago next month, I came to this city with my family, and the people have ever extended to me the hand of friendship and have invariably expressed to me words of kindness and encouragement. If I have in return for those kind acts done anything to deserve a recognition of this sort, then I have to say it is all the more gratifying to me, and I must naturally feel under still greater obligations than ever to my fellow citizens.

Never having desired the public offices that have been tendered me so invariably against my wishes and desires, I feel that the present occasion is certainly a very high compliment, and especially when I have been tendered the highest office in this State and elected by so overwhelming a majority. It is a compliment that I feel very much embarrassed at receiving, and it places me in a position very different from those who are generally elected to office; it places me in a position to feel still greater responsibility and anxiety that I may discharge the duties of the office in a manner that the people of the State will indorse, and will be for the greatest good to the greatest number.

While I am a Republican and have been from the birth of the party, and am proud that this is the case, and while I am also proud of the many great acts of the party, yet I feel that I am bound by obligations which will cause me to act for the interest of all, irrespective of party, and my great aim will be to make my administration one that men of both parties should indorse.

I desire to express my gratitude to the Republicans of this State who have given me such a handsome vote in this election, and I desire also to express my hearty thanks to those of the opposite party in this city who have been so magnanimous as to throw aside party prejudices and give me their support. I feel that it has not been done because they have changed their political views, nor because they wish to particularly indorse the Republican party, but that it was done as an expression of their friendship towards me.

To all my fellow citizens of Hallowell, as well as to the many others in the different parts of the State, who have voted for me and have expressed to me their hearty congratulations on my election, I wish to extend my most sincere thanks and I trust they will never regret their action.

As I have no further political aspirations than one term, I am placed in position to act independently and unselfishly in my administration, and whatever may seem, in my judgment, for the good of the people, I shall endeavor to promote so far as lies in my power.

I again thank you fellow citizens most sincerely and bid you a hearty welcome here to-night.

Brief remarks were then made by several other gentlemen present, and an informal reception followed.

The Kittery Outrage.

[Lewiston Journal.]

The Maine Democrats have regularly protested in past years against the alleged prostitution of the Kittery Navy Yard to aid the Republicans. Three weeks ago the North Atlantic Squadron was ordered to Kittery ostensibly "to repair"—which it didn't need, so far as one could see. The result was a large increase in the Democratic majority in Kittery. The purpose of Secretary Whitney was to defeat Congressman Reed, but York, nevertheless, gives Reed a plurality. Now, 'tis said the fleet will remain at Portsmouth to swell the New Hampshire Democratic vote. After the loud-voiced professions of reform, this is bad enough, but what makes it more brazen is a recent order from the Navy Department which tells the squadron how to evade the laws of 1876 forbidding an increase in the number of employes in any of the yards within sixty days before an election in its immediate vicinity, without special authority from the Secretary. The circular states that it will, of course, be necessary to increase the force at the Kittery and Norfolk navy yards, where extensive repairs are to be made to several war vessels, but the additional workmen will be appointed on a certificate of the Secretary. Meantime President Cleveland is devoting himself assiduously to shooting at moose in the Adirondacks, while his administration shoots reform and nullifies law.

American Nervousness.

[New York Tribune.]

Dr. Grace Peckham read an interesting paper on this subject before the American Social Science Association at Saratoga the other day. The view taken was, briefly, that if Americans are more nervous than the people of other countries, the fact cannot be ascribed to climate, but to ways of living, occupations, and, generally, to the great competition in money-making. Probably there is truth in these considerations, but not the whole truth. American nervousness is not, to begin with, a national characteristic. It is not found outside the great centres of population to an appreciable extent. It is the concomitant of constant excitement, hurry, effort to crowd more action into every twenty-four hours than the day will hold.

Primarily it is one of the penalties attaching to the unprecedented opportunities for money-making which this country affords. In the Old World the upward progress of the race has been slow and painful. The pressure of population upon a restricted area has narrowed the possibilities of material advancement, while the forms of government have reinforced the proscriptive tendency by fostering caste. As a result human impulse has been restrained, ambition checked and energy fettered. Life confined in grooves from which escape is hopeless tends to slow combustion. It is in communities so situated that "the set gray life and apathetic end" become not only possible but usual. The restriction of motive and the denial of opportunity discourage enterprise, while producing a certain stolid sturdiness of character. Greater thoroughness and solidity in the execution of important works come also of such enforced leisure, and it is possible that life passed without continual excitement may offer a serene bovine enjoyment unknown to the typical American. But that which has stamped the latter with the characteristics which distinguish him is the magnificence of the field laid open to his untrammelled energies.

All that has been required of him is the brain to utilize his unlimited opportunities, and he has hastened to develope a practical talent as unrivalled as the range of its exercise. We who live in the swirl and roar of modern commerce do not appreciate the marvelous changes which a century of American activity, constantly quickened by success, has wrought upon the country. But it is in the doing of all this, in the evolution of the United States of to-day, in the building of this great and rich nation, that what is known as American nervousness has been developed.

When we consider that almost every important advance in mechanical science, in telegraphy, in transportation has had for its main object the facilitation of business transactions, and that every such facilitation represents fresh demands upon the energy and endurance of business men, it is no wonder that nervousness increases. The man of business does to-day probably ten times as much work in office hours as his father was able to do. He does not perhaps make ten times as much money as his father, for there is much expenditure of energy in the friction of competition, and that does not count on the right side of the ledger. But the hurry and rush grow more compelling and dominating continually, and as the human system, though capable of adaptation to most new conditions, requires time for such changes, the new exactions come upon constitutions but partially prepared to meet them, and nervousness, often with dangerous implications, is the result.

As men grow more accustomed to the swell and movement of the gigantic modern commerce, they may acquire more leisurely habits, though it is doubtful whether anything less than the exhaustion of the present abundant temptations to work will cause an appreciable check in the swift current of business activity. Meantime the American has what he prizes most, and he appears to have counted the cost and to have decided that nervousness is, after all not a very heavy price to pay for the material benefits which result from its ceaseless activity.

THE IRISH TENANT FARMER.

A Denial by Michael Davitt.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 16. The Bee publishes an interview with Michael Davitt on the subject of the pamphlet issued by the English Loyal and Patriotic Union on "The status of the Irish tenant farmer." Davitt says the arguments advanced in the pamphlet are utterly misleading and tend to create a misconception in the minds of the American public as to the present exact state of affairs in Ireland. He draws marked attention to the great depreciation that has taken place within the last few years in the prices of all Irish agricultural products and denies that Irish farmers enjoy greater advantages of tenure than others do. He says that the facts and figures which Parnell will present when he introduces his bill in the House of Commons Friday next will completely refute the misrepresentations made in this pamphlet and will establish the truth of his charges against the entire landlord system.

ANTI-SALOON REPUBLICANS.

An Organization Perfected and Resolutions Adopted.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16. The first national convention of anti-saloon Republicans began its session in this city this forenoon. There were about 300 delegates present. United States Senator Henry W. Blair, of New Hampshire was elected temporary chairman. In addressing the convention Mr. Blair expressed thanks for the honor and said: "We are here for the destruction of the rum traffic throughout this country and throughout the world. I think I speak the sentiments of the convention when I say that as between free rum and low license we are in favor of high license. [Cheers!] That as between high license and Prohibition we are in favor of Prohibition." [great cheering.] Blair went on to say that they had also met as Republicans. They were in the party and could not be driven out and he was one of those who believed it was only through the Republican party that the suppression of the liquor traffic could be secured.

A call of States was then proceeded with to form the usual committees.

Report of Committee on Credentials.

The Committee on Credentials reported 287 accredited delegates present, as follows: Illinois, 40; Iowa, 20; Kansas, 30; Indiana, 118; Maine, 1; Vermont, 9; New York, 6; Rhode Island, 7; Michigan, 3; Wisconsin, 11; Massachusetts, 12; Nevada, 1; Minnesota 15; Texas, 2; Dakota, 1; Pennsylvania, 1; Ohio, 1; New Jersey, 7; New Hampshire 2. The Committee on Permanent Organization reported the name of

of Minnesota, for permanent chairman, and he was unanimously elected. Mr. Windom was loudly cheered. Among other things he said: We are here under the call of true and loyal Republicans desiring through that party to accomplish what we believe to be a great good for the American people.

For myself, I never had the slightest thought of attempting to organize a new political party. I think such a thought does not enter the mind of any other delegate present. The party that freed the slave, that dignified human labor, enacted the homestead laws, that suppressed the great rebellion, that defended its honor in peace, advanced it to the front rank of the nations of the earth, is good enough for me now." The speaker said the record of the party for twenty years had proved its willingness to grapple with this new issue and carry it to victory. The issue was as great as any the Republicans had ever had to meet. It resolved itself to the question whether the saloon was to dominate the politics of the nation.

"We do not meet to dictate to the Republican party," said the speaker, "We are here Simply for Consultation.

We meet to encourage it to take hold of this question which it surely will have to do, and the sooner the better." The speaker said he would look at the question solely from the political standpoint and not the moral standpoint. The saloon was in politics with its assessments and money. It was the open ally of anarchy. It to-day controlled the politics of every large city. In Minnesota the Democratic party had nominated for Governor "the very incarnation of the saloonist."

Mr. Windom then spoke for thirty minutes on the general issue. He touched on the prohibitionists and said it was his view that they could carry out their purposes in a better way than they were now doing, in following the lead of the Republican party. They would find that that party had said that slavery should extend no further and on that platform slavery was abolished. The Republican party would declare for high license, local option and recognize the right of the people to vote on the question directly when they wished to do so. All lovers of temperance should follow that lead.

A number of short speeches were made in the afternoon while the convention waited for the committee on resolutions to report.

Mr. Dunn, of Maine,

said the Republican party was amply able to enforce prohibition in Maine. The people had no faith in the prohibitionists as a political party, but in the Republican party for the creation and enforcement of statutes governing the sale and manufacture of liquor.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions adopted declare that the liquor traffic, as it exists to-day, is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy and the school of crime, and with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

Resolved, That we declare war against the saloon and hold it to be the supreme duty of the government to adopt such measures as shall restrict it and control its influence and at the earliest possible moment extinguish it together.

We believe that the National Government should absolutely prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia and all the Territories of the United States.

The best practical method of dealing with the liquor traffic in the several States is to let the people decide whether it be prohibited by the submission of constitutional amendments, and until such amendments are adopted by the passage of local option laws.

Resolved, That inasmuch as the saloon business creates a special burden of taxation upon the people to support courts, jails and almshouses, therefore a large annual tax should be levied upon saloons as long as they continue to exist, and they should be made responsible for all public and private injury resulting from the traffic.

Resolved, That the Republican party wherever and whenever in power, will faithfully enforce whatsoever ordinances, statutes or constitutional amendments that may be enacted for the restriction or suppression of the liquor traffic.

That we approve the action of Congress and those States that have done so, in providing for teaching the physiological effects of intoxicants in our public schools, and that we earnestly recommend to every State Legislature the enacting of such laws as shall provide for the thorough teaching of such effects to our children. We demand that the Republican party, to which we belong and whose welfare we cherish, shall take a firm and decided stand as the friend of the home and the enemy of the saloon, in favor of this policy.

We pledge ourselves to do our utmost to cause the party to take such stand, and we call upon all temperance men and all friends of humanity, of whatever party or name, to join with us in securing these objects and in support of the Republican party as far as it shall adopt them.

National Committee.

A national committee was then appointed with the following New England members: Maine, Senator Frye; New Hampshire, Senator Henry W. Blair; Vermont, George A. Brown; Massachusetts, Col. E. H. Haskell; Rhode Island, Henry C. Metcalf.

THE FISHERY TROUBLES.

Opening of the Case of the David J. Adams.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 16. The first evidence in the David J. Adams seizure case was taken this afternoon by Commissioner McClellan. The only persons present were N. H. Meagher, counsel for the United States, Wallace Graham and R. L. Borden, representing Canada, Captains Scott and Dakin, First Officer Hill, and a number of newspaper reporters. The examination of only two witnesses, First Officer Hill and Capt. Dakin, was completed.

Just after the proceedings opened Mr. Meagher objected to reporters being allowed to attend, saying that the court was private and besides the publication of evidence might prejudice the minds of people against the case for the United States before the dispute actually came up in the Vice Admiralty Court for settlement.

Commissioner McClellan said he did not know that he could rule reporters out, as their attendance at courts of law was regarded as ordinarily a part of the proceedings, and asked Meagher whether he could show any authority why the court should act in the manner desired.

Mr. Meagher replied that he thought such authority was possessed by any person taking evidence, and insisted that the newspaper representatives should not be allowed to remain.

The commissioner said he could not order them out unless authority could be shown for such proceeding, and the matter being dropped here the reporters stayed. Before the court adjourned Mr. Meagher declared that he wanted some fair play, of which he had not received any thus far, from press attaches, and said that if any of the evidence was printed here he would proceed against the paper publishing it for contempt of court. The legal gentlemen then arranged that objections taken by counsel during the examination should be made note of by the commissioner.

First Officer Hill

testified that the Lansdowne reached Digby Thursday night May 6th. He went on the watch at 4 o'clock the next morning. Soon afterwards a boat from the shore came along and pointed to a Yankee schooner with a broken topmast lying up the basin near Bear Island. He ordered out the boat and was rowed to the vessel. Immediately after the Lansdowne's boat left the steamer's side the American was seen to be getting under way. The boat reached her as she was tacking out towards Digby Gut. Without boarding her Officer Hill hailed the captain and asked him his business in there.

The captain replied that he came in to see his people and stated that he had bought no bait. Officer Hill ordered him outside the limits and returned to the Lansdowne. Four hours later Captain Dakin, who had been on shore, returned to the Lansdowne and on information which he brought Officer Hill again set off to board the Adams. By this time she was in Digby Gut, tacking out. Captain Kenney being charged with purchasing bait again denied the charge. One of the schooner's hatches was then opened and a seaman descending into the hold handed one herring to Mr Hill. It appeared quite fresh and he said so to the captain who replied that it was ten days old.

Mr Hill also observed in the ice house, below deck, about eight barrels of fish through which ice was distributed. He returned to the Lansdown and reported his discovery to Capt. Scott. Capt. Dakin and Mr. Hill then set off again and boarded the Adams and Capt. Dakin made the same discovery as Mr. Hill. Going back to the Lansdowne he got Capt. Scott and the latter boarded the Adams and declared her seized. Officer Hill, before retiring, in reply to Mr. Meagher, said that if there was any prize money to be distributed in connection with the seizure, he would expect his share.

Captain Charles Dakin, of the Lansdowne, gave his evidence, which agreed with that given by Mr. Hill, respecting the seizure. He said when he examined the herring he found them perfectly fresh; their gills were red, their eyes light and their appearance generally was good. He would expect his share of any prize money awarded.

The court adjourned till to-morrow.

The Case of the Moro Castle.

United States Consul General Phelan will go to Port Hawkesbury to investigate the seizure of the schooner Moro Castle.

MASSACHUSETTS PROHIBITIONISTS.

Non-Partisan State Temperance Convention.

WORCESTER, Sept. 16. The non-partisan temperance convention opened this morning with a large attendance. Hon. Frederick Fosdick, mayor of Fitchburg, said there was a large number of good men in each party who were declining which way to go, and it was certain that if the Republican party did not do something more for temperance work it would certainly be shaken by the coming political earthquake.

John Winslow, ex-district attorney of the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., expressed his opinion that two thirds of the Republican party were with them in their work and two thirds of the Democratic party were sympathizers of the rum sellers. He advocated the formation of a third party for the purpose of meeting the enemy and with the workers of the Republican party he believed that success was assured.

Sympathy with the Movement.

Letters of regret were read. John D. Long said: "I heartily approve of the objects of the convention, and if any word of mine would promote them I would gladly add it. I understand these objects to aim toward the enforcement of the laws against the liquor traffic. Nothing in the whole matter is more important."

Hon. Robert R. Bishop rejoiced that the meeting had been called and looked for good results.

Governor Robinson expressed an earnest desire for abundant success of the convention and for the support of such practical measures and suggestions as should overcome and destroy the terrible influence and evil of intemperance.

Henry Faxon wrote a characteristic letter and enclosed $30.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore made a brief address, after which resolutions were adopted.

At the Afternoon Session

Rev. Daniel Dorchester, D.D., of Chelsea, spoke on constitutional prohibition. He said the objective point aimed at is the suppression of the liquor saloon and all sales of alcoholic beverages, with a prohibitory constitution.

Mayor Parsons, of Gloucester, spoke at some length on the methods be pursued in fighting the rum sellers. He advised his hearers to vote opposite from the rum seller, no matter which way he voted.

POST MEETING. The regular meeting of B. H. Beale Post, G. A. R., at its hall last evening, was one of the most interesting held this year. Robinson, Jr., and the fine remarks of Prof. Sewall. All of these gentlemen were listened to with much earnestness and attention and the comrades were thoroughly pleased with their remarks. Base Ball Notes.

The Colby nine has commenced practice with Larrabee captain, behind the bat, Goodwin in the box, Gilmore 1st, Pulsifer 2d, Wagg 3d, Bowman s. s., Gibbs l. f. Center and right field will be filled from the following: King, Roberts, Knights and Megguire. Dilworth, formerly of the Belfasts, now on the Binghamton (N. Y.) nine, pitched a game against the famous Torontos last week and beat them 7 to 4. He struck out ten men and they got but one hit off him up to the ninth inning, when they got two. He will probably play in Cleveland next year.

The members of the Bangors are nearly all playing in Massachusetts. Earle caught for the Cochituates when they beat the Milfords Wednesday, and Barrett won a game for the Salems against the Manchesters on the same day. His pitching was the feature of the game. Callahan, formerly of the Belfasts caught him.

The Maine State College nine plays the Bucksports in that place to-day.

The Bucksports beat the Bangor Reserves yesterday afternoon 11 to 0. Kelly played first base for Bangors and Small of the Maine State College team pitched for the Bucksports.

DROWNED AT THE BOOM.

Cornelius Daley, an Old and Well Known River Man Loses his Life.

About eleven o'clock Wednesday night Cornelius Daley employed as a "runner" at the Bangor Boom and who was at work there during the night was missed from his customary position. Search was at once made for him and in a few minutes his hat was found near the outer edge of the boom. It was thought then that he might have gone home and a man was sent down there to look for him. But he was not there and his body was not found until shortly before five o'clock in the morning, at nearly low tide, when it was discovered lying on the bottom of the river within a few feet of where his hat was found. There was only a few feet of water at the time.

Just how the drowning occurred will probably never be known, as the deceased was an expert swimmer, in fact one of the finest in Maine. It is believed that he was drowned at high tide. He was the oldest and best known riverman on the Penobscot, having worked on it continuously for thirty-one years, the greater part of the time on the boom. He was a splendid oarsman and was known to every man on the Penobscot, being very popular with them. Daley was fifty-two years of age and leaves four children, the youngest being seventeen years of age.

AMUSEMENTS.

Lady of Lyons.

The fact that Atkinson & Cook's Company can attract so large an audience as that of last evening to the Opera House on a rainy night is no slight testimonial to the popularity of that well known organization in this city. The audience would have been a good one for a pleasant night. The play was "The Lady of Lyons" in which, perhaps, the company appears to less advantage than in any other in their repertoire. Nevertheless they treated their listeners last evening to most pleasant entertainment. The play ran smoothly and satisfactorily while the costumes and other minor stage effects were as excellent as on the the preceding evenings.

Miss Banks showed a clear conception of the character of Pauline, and her execution of this difficult role was much praised. Mr. Sullivan was an acceptable Claude but is not as well suited to this part as some of the others which he plays. The support was evenly balanced and in the main quite good. Applause was frequent and it was evident that the audience was well pleased with the entertainment.

It is thought the company will present that stirring drama "The Lyons Mail." It is one which they can play finely, and another large audience will witness it.

Roland Reed.

The delightful exponent of farcical comedy, Roland Reed, supported by his superb company, will present his comedy drama "Cheek" on Monday evening Sept. 20, and on Tuesday evening Sept. 21, his farcical comedy, "Humbug." An exchange has the following to say of the play and the actor:

"Roland Reed, though young in years, is by no means young in the profession. He has grown up upon the stage, is familiar with its traditions and methods, and is noted for a bright or geniality, which, combined with his experience, makes him one of the most thoroughly satisfactory comedians of the day. Step by step he has climbed the professional ladder, and now for the first time comes before the public as a star. Mr. Reed is particularly adapted for eccentric comedy parts; slender, active and graceful, with a peculiar intonation of voice, and unusually mobile and expressive features, a pleasing vocalist and good dancer. Brimfull of natural humor and heartily entering into the spirit of the characters which he assumes, he quickly becomes a favorite with an audience. The sale of seats opens this morning.

Notes.

It has been decided to present Little Emily next Saturday afternoon. The great favor with which the piece was received Wednesday evening ought to ensure a crowded house. It is really an excellent performance.

Roland Reed has cancelled his Augusta date as the management thought that the entertainment would not be a success financially, it is said.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Thomas J. Ducey, pastor of the church, the contracting parties having satisfied him that there were no impediments to the union. There was no one else present. Miss Nevins is of one of the most distinguished families of Ohio. Her maternal grandfather was Hon. Samuel Medary, long editor of the Ohio Statesman, Territorial Governor of Minnesota before its admission as a State, and Territorial Governor of Kansas in the trying days under Buchanan. He was always a leading Democrat, and was prominently mentioned as a candidate for the Presidential nomination of the party in 1864. Her father, Col. Richard Nevins, was a Philadelphian. He is a gentleman of culture and attainments, and, with his wife, is well known in the society of New York. In Columbus and Cincinnati their intimate friends are the Thurmans, Dennisons, Hoadleys and Pendletons.—Kennebec Journal.

OUR BRADFORD LETTER.

A Successful Fair—Other Items.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

The Bradford Independent Agricultural Society held its tenth annual Cattle Show and Fair at North Bradford last Wednesday. The day was a perfect one in every respect and an immense throng of people were in attendance from all the surrounding towns. The exhibit in the hall was unusually good and very tastefully arranged and highly complimented, while the show of stock was not as large as in former years. Among other attractions was a game of base ball by the North Bradford nine and the Bradford nine which resulted in a victory for the former club. The Bradford Brass Band, M. G. Brackett, leader discoursed several selections during the day. Wednesday evening there was a grand ball at Gowan's Hall. Music was furnished by Farris' Orchestra, of Dover, and the attendance was large.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fletcher, formerly of this place, have been spending a few days among relatives, and leave to-day for their home in Powell, Penn., where Mr. Fletcher is engaged in the teaming business.

Mr. G. McLure of Minnesota recently returned here on a visit after an absence of twenty years.

The vote for representative in this class at the recent election was as follows:

	Rep. Kingsbury	Dem. Humphrey
Corinth,	170	126
Charleston,	120	125
Bradford,	182	150
	472	401

Thus giving a Republican majority of 71 in the class.

'Liz'bet.'

BY HENRIETTA H. HOLDICH.

I was in despair. Having told you that, I suppose I must tell you how and why. We lived upon the river, you see, just a convenient distance from the city. It was the easiest thing in the world for our friends to come out by boat, spend a long summer's day with us, and go home in the evening refreshed in mind and body. Who begrudged it? I am sure that I did not, but it is not always convenient to have friends dropping upon you in showers, especially when you have no servant. That was it, you see. I had no servant, therefore I was in despair. Suppose I should have an avalanche of company to-day, and I alone. Who could cook the dinner while I entertained them? Or, if I cooked the dinner, who would entertain them? Which alternative was to be preferred, that my guests should go dinnerless, or amuse themselves as best they could in my absence? In either case—

"Beg pardon, missis."

I was seated on the piazza, sunk in meditation, when the words caused me to raise my head suddenly. They had come across the lawn, which accounted for my not having heard their footsteps.

"Beg pardon, missis; but we heard you wanted a servant. Me an' my ole woman, we'se bof out ob a place, so"—

He was rather a jolly little man, with a round, shiny, black face, and a square, sturdy figure. I disregarded him entirely, though, as I turned to the tall, turbaned woman beside him, black as he, but with fine-cut features and deep, sad eyes.

"Can you cook?" I asked.

She opened her lips to speak but he caught the words away before she could utter them.

"Cook!" he cried. "Bless yo' soul, missis, yes! Won't fin' no better cook'n 'Liz'bet' nowhar. Best cook all de kentry roun', 'Liz'bet' is. Can't fin' de beat 'o her.

"And sweep and scour and do general housework?" I asked hastily, for in comparison with cooking nothing seemed to me of much account just then.

The wages they asked were low, so absurdly low that a vague doubt entered my mind. There was not much to be lost by trying, however, and if I lost this chance, there was no saying when another might come my way. Moreover, something in the woman's face attracted me, and I said hesitatingly:

"I feel half inclined to try you."

"Me, too, missus," said the man, with a grotesque bow. "We doesn't sep'rate, me an' 'Liz'bet'. You want a man to take keer ob de cow and do odd jobs."

"Yes, we want a man," I said dubiously, knowing that Stephen, our factotum, had left that very morning.

The risks of engaging a totally strange man might have been serious enough to make me pause, had not the day-boat come in sight around the point just then. A cloud of fluttering handkerchiefs on deck forewarned me of guests, and that decided me. There was no time for delay, for the landing was just below the cliffs, and my friends, whoever they might be, would arrive in half an hour at the farthest. Therefore, without realizing what I was doing, I concluded the bargain, hurried 'Liz'bet' in to show her the kitchen, started Jimmy off to attend to the neglected cow, gave hasty orders for the killing of chickens, and concocting of whip-syllabubs—my invariable resources in an emergency—was on the piazza to greet my guests when they arrived.

For once I was thoroughly delighted. Of all the friends I had in the world they were those whom I most wished to see. They were all cultivated, literary, artistic, and time flew in spite of my internal shivering and wonderment. I must escort them to the best points of view, I must join in their conversation, I must give my opinion on of this, and that, and the other. Not a moment was left me in which to steal from the room to see how things were going on in the kitchen and dining-room. A fierce qualm seized me as the dinner-bell, at last, clanged, and I rose to marshal my guests to the dining-room.

Can I describe my first feelings of relief and amazement, as I glanced at the table? Every plate, knife, fork, and napkin in its place, the cloth without a wrinkle, the dishes symmetrically arranged. There was even a dish in the center heaped with flowers and garlanded with delicate trailing vines. Would the viands bear out the promise which the table held forth? They did. The roasted chickens were done to a turn, the fried ones were such as only a colored cook can achieve. The vegetables were perfectly cooked and faultlessly seasoned. The dessert—whip-syllabubs, floating-islands, custards—was fit for the gods of Olympus. The cup of coffee, which (unordered by me) crowned the repast, was "clear as amber, fine as musk."

"You have a treasure of a cook," said one of my friends, and I, who had been prepared to lavish myself in abject apologies, smiled and held my peace.

When I told Gerald what I had done, he laughed. Then he looked grave, and, after a moment, left the room. When he came back, his face was a study—puzzled, pleased and doubtful all at once.

"I think, on the whole, you have made a good bargain, Molly," he said. "They have excellent references, though we can not verify them, as their last employer has broken up housekeeping and gone to Europe. The man seems the essence of good nature, and understands his work thoroughly, I should judge. The woman has a noble face, though it is intensely sad. Perhaps it was Providence that sent them to our door. You had better keep your eyes open and watch them closely though."

Of course, I should keep my eyes open—who would not, with strange servants about?—but there did not seem very much to watch. 'Liz'bet' was simply perfect in every department to which she put her hand. Never had I been so perfectly at leisure from household cares, certain that whatever I was obliged to leave undone she would do it in a way that would bring no discredit upon me. She never seemed tired and never in a hurry, moving about always with smooth, slow, stately motions, now in the kitchen, now in the bedrooms, now in the barn and cow-house—for I was not long in discovering that she did more than half of Jimmy's work. That did not trouble me, so long as both his and her own work were promptly done. It was rather pleasant to see Jimmy's sturdy little figure reclining peacefully under a tree, and to hear his mellow voice crooning one of the quaint "spiritovals," in which his soul delighted, while I was quite sure that neither lacked for aught.

One hot afternoon I was reading at my window. The blinds were closed, making a green twilight shot through with sharp little arrows of golden light. The book had dropped from languid fingers, my eyes were fast closing, when voices from without reached my ear. I was hardly awake, yet I recognized 'Lizbet's voice.

"Sho, now, Jimmy, honey? wake up, can't ye? and fotch me a pail o' water. I does hate to ax ye, but seems like I must hab it, and I can't leabe my work—de pies in de oben, an' de ham abilin' an' jest all but done."

"Go yo'se'f, old lazy bones," grumbled Jimmy, sleepily. "I's done tired totin' tings fur ye. Go 'long and luff me lone."

But 'Liz'bet' still lingered, pleading:

"Ah, now, honey, jes' dis once. Tell ye I can't leabe de cookin', no ways. Jes' tink how often I dun tings fur yo'."

"Done tings fur me?" roared Jimmy, apparently rising "on his beam-ends." "Done tings fur me? Yes, an' yo'll do more yit, or yo'll clar out o' dis place mighty quick, like you do ont o' more'n one afore. Fotch de water or go widout, I don't keer. Clar out an' leabe me 'lone. Ye knows what I mean, an' yo' better min'."

Then there was a dead silence, save for the satisfied grunt with which Jimmy settled himself down to his interrupted slumbers. If my slumbers had not been disturbed, too, I might have thought more of this little scene; but, as it was, an hour afterward I recalled it only as a vague and hazy dream.

"We will have a 'tipsy parson' for dessert, Elizabeth," I said one morning some weeks later.

Then, as 'Liz'bet' only looked at me silently, with a gaze in which I fancied something imploring, I added:

"Don't you know how to make it? You must take that stale sponge cake and soak it"—

"Yes, yes, misses, I knows," interrupted 'Liz'bet'. "I'se made it afo'. But—but—does misses tink it'll be good to-day? Such a hot day, honey!"

"Nonsense, Elizabeth," I cried. "Good? Of course it will be good. Hot weather is just the time for it."

"Yes, misses."

The voice was so sad and resigned that I looked at her in involuntary curiosity, but her face was bowed over her work, and my gaze fell upon her gay turban. So leaving the wine upon the table, I left the kitchen.

Unless I had guests for the day, I always preferred waiting dinner until Gerald's return at five or six o'clock. Usually it was upon the table with the utmost promptitude, but to-night, we waited in vain for its appearance. At length I went to the kitchen to investigate the reason of the delay. The air there reeked with odors of scorched soup, blackened meat, and burned vegetables. On the table upon the floor, lay scattered fragments of glass, which I recognized as the wreck of the bottle which had held the wine. Had 'Liz'bet,' having met, as was evident, with an accident, fled in terror before my anticipated wrath? Had Jimmy accompanied her? Had?—My doubts were interrupted by the sound of a heavy foot upon the back stairs. The door opened and Jimmy entered. He started at sight of me, but recovered himself instantly. I had no time to speak before his apologies and explanations poured out upon me.

"Berry sorry, missis. 'Pears like it's too bad, 'deed it does, but 'Liz'bet' tuk sick. I'se jes' been a-totin' her up to bed. An' de dinner all spiled. Sho, now. Ain't dat too bad! An' missis hungry. I'll lay," cried Jimmy, as he bustled about, whipping off covers, opening overs and inspecting pots and pans.

"What's the matter with Elizabeth, Jimmy?" I asked.

"Kin' ob fit, I reckon," said Jimmy, hesitatingly. "W'en I come in I found her all ob a heap in de middle ob de flo'. I jes' toted her up to bed. No, miss; better not go up. Mought do her harm to wake her. Had 'em afore. Lay yes, heaps o'times. Allers comes out ob 'em all right. Do'n' neber las' mo'n a night. Now, ef missis 'll go back to the parlor, I'll call her w'en de dinner is dished up. Der's enough lef' yar to make right smart ob a meal yit. Ef missis hes any mo' wine, I kin make de kin' o' puddin' she wants—make it heaps better dan 'Liz'bet'. I was steward on a steamer one time. Missis kin trust me."

"Really, Gerald," I said, as I told of the scene, "I do hope that Elizabeth does not have these fits often. I am growing very much attached to her, and it would be horribly inconvenient never to know whether she is to be depended upon or not."

"At all events you have a very efficient substitute in Jimmy," said Gerald, laughing, as he disposed of a good share of the dinner which Jimmy's exertions had saved.

I was most unpleasantly awakened early the next morning, by a sound which was strange in our domicile—a sound of blows, heavy and cruel, with which mingled low and then a faint wail, as of some creature which can bear no more in silence. Springing from my bed, I rushed to the window, but nothing was visible.

Creating Surprise

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning, noon and evening in season for important mails.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 8 to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier's department should be reported to the office.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.

Messenger boys are constantly in attendance to deliver letters with immediate delivery stamps, on arrival of all mails, and for local letters from 6 A. M. to 8.30 P. M., at which hour the office is closed. Persons depositing city letters will please pass them into the general delivery.

Letters arriving from West Sunday morning are delivered on arrival.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $22.50 per thousand.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot.

The undersigned, administrator of the estate of Frank M. Lunt late of Burlington in said county, deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay the just debts and charges of administration.
